that committee within forty days of the time it was referred. In the event the bill or matter is not reported within the specific time, the Charter recites, the matter shall be considered as before the Council or House as the case may be, and shall then be referred to a committee of the whole to be acted upon.

According to the records the Committee on Engrossed and Enrolled Bills has had the bills in question since May 26. Allowing for the time limit of forty days the committee should have reported them for passage not later than the meeting of July 6, when the time limit expired.

Opinions solicited from several well-known attorneys concur in the belief that the House's action might cause the city considerable trouble should citizens challenge the payment of confractors.

"In the House, as you know," said Edward J. O'Neil, chalrman of the Committee on Engrossed and Enrolled Bills, "there has been considerable turmoil over the passage of any bills whatsoever. It was absolutely impossible to get them to agree to any proposition, Our committee, therefore, was holding back for a suitable time to get them through, but never noticed that the time limit had expired. At time to get them through, but never no-ticed that the time limit had expired. At Tuesday's meeting we decided to put the bills out and let them sink or swim. To our surprise they went through."

FARMER HAS DESPERATE ENCOUNTER WITH SNAKE.

Alphonse Dumette Says the Reptile Crawled Over Bed in Which His Children Were Sleeping.

Alphonse Dumette, a farmer, living near French Village, between East St. Louis subscribers inducements to take The and Belleville, says he fought for an hour in the dark in his children's room Wednesday night with a snake, which measured eight feet.

A pair of boots and heavy clothing is all that saved Dumette from being bitten by the reptile.

leave the window open a few inches from the bottom. Dumette says he was roused by the barking of his two dogs and screams of the children. Thinking that a hurgiar had entered the house he grahbed his shotgun and approached his children's room. As he neared the door one of the children told him that a snake had just crawled over the bed. Dumette put on a storm coat and entered the room prepared to battle with the reptile.

The snake was coiled in a corner of the room when he entered. The children were crouched in an opposite corner.

Dumette says he pulled the trigger of the gun, but the cartridges falled to explode, and he found himself compelled to fight the snake, which was moving toward him. As the snake sprang at him Dumette swung his shotgun and the reptile sank its fangs in his boot leg twice.

Just get The Delineator

THE OCTOBER NUMBER, now on the news-stands, answers squarely the question of supremacy among the magazines for woman and the home. In your selection of a magazine you may choose from two classes—those you need and those you read for recreation—or else you take THE DELINEATOR and combine both.

If the word "necessary" is susceptible of a superlative, THE DELINEATOR is beyond all question the "most necessary" of all the magazines published for Woman. Nine hundred thousand families proved this to be so last month; and each month brings its new thousands of members into the ever-growing DELINEATOR FAMILY.

Among the fashions it is the "most necessary" because it is all the fashion magazines in one, with their mistakes eliminated—their exaggerations corrected, and the really successful novelties stamped with the seal of authoritative approvalfor if it is pictured in THE DELINEATOR it is "good form."

It is equally the "most necessary" in the Nursery-in the Sewing-Room-in the Kitchen-throughout the whole house and out-of-doors in city and in country. The partial list of contents below can only hint at the interest underlying every line.

The Evolution of a Club Woman, by Agnes Surbridge, begins in this number. It is an autobiography and is the predicted success of the year. J. C. Hemment, the world-famed camera expert, begins one of the most remarkable series of photographic articles ever presented. They relate to his personal adventures at home and in foreign lands. The Silent Partner, by Lynn Roby Meekins; A Florida Cracker, by Virginia Frazer Boyle, are prominent among the fiction features, while the departments are fuller than usual of the good things, with special interest centering in the chil-
